

The implications of globalization for conservation in Africa

Mwampamba TH

Abrams RW

Awoyemi S

Babalola FD

Borokini TI

Egoh, Benis

Idrissi HR

Koussa T

Nganje M

O'Leary J

ABSTRACT:

The Third African Congress for Conservation Biology (ACCB 2016) (www.accb2016morocco.com), which will take place between the 4th and 8th of September 2016, in El Jadida, Morocco, is aimed at exploring the multiple facets of globalization in the context of conservation in Africa. African Congresses for Conservation Biology (ACCBs) are irregular events of the Africa Section of the Society for Conservation Biology (SCB Africa) that are hosted by different institutions in alternating African countries. ACCBs provide the space and platform to share and discuss recent research findings and conservation experiences, to build networks, to form collaborations and to identify strategies for addressing the meeting's theme.